

Abstract of the Disclosure

The present invention provides a skin cancer preventive agent that inhibits the promotion of carcinogenesis of skin cancer while having high levels of safety and stability as well as being free of adverse side effects. The present invention is characterized by containing sericin.

09863316 - 052401